The Philippines has strong fundamentals that compare well against other emerging markets, and consistently position the economy as one of the strongest in SE Asia. Recent years have seen inflation reined-in to a low 2.6%, while interest rates have remained above 3% for more than 5 years.

A youthful workforce, high population growth, and pervasive English language skills have created a booming knowledge-worker sector, and an ever-expanding middle-income demographic. The current population of 109M is expected to grow to 142M by 2045.
